

World Statistics Day (August 2010)

In commemorating World Statistics Day, the DevInfo initiative acknowledges and recognizes the central and fundamental role of statistical services in monitoring human development. This often unseen work provides critical evidence for planning, resource allocation and ultimately the advancements in human development.

The DevInfo initiative affirms its commitment to strengthening, monitoring and dissemination of official statistics and to partnering with organizations, agencies and institutions to improve services in the years to come.

Please click on any of the links below to access official statistics in a variety of user-friendly formats.

Country statistical profiles

Searchable online gallery of tables, maps and graphs

Online access to global level human development data

Animated Flash presentations on human development

For more information on World Statistics Day, please visit <http://unstats.un.org/unsd/wsd/Default.aspx>